

CHAPTER ONE

CHILDREN NEED SUPERVISION

THERE'S NO SUBSTITUTE FOR PARENTING

When asked whether you as a parent or teacher would allow a child to go out into the world without supervision, an adult would answer with a resounding “No”. So why would we do the same in the online world?

Children need to understand what dangers could face them, how to avoid those dangers and know that their parents are watching over them in case they get into a tough spot. The same holds true for talking to your kids about staying safe online.

This E-booklet will give you tips on setting rules for online use, make you aware of social platforms that your kids are using and give you ideas on how to make a child's online experience as safe as possible.

You should know that all the filters in the world are not a replacement for good old fashioned parent supervision and open conversations.

“You know the only people who are always sure about the proper way to raise children? Those who've never had any.”
-Bill Cosby
